BACKGROUND SUMMARY

PTA has long worked to protect children and youth from the harmful effects of alcohol. The California State PTA convention delegates passed resolutions in 1982 on Alcohol Related Driver Education; in 1985 on Limiting Concurrent Sales of Gasoline and Alcohol and the Proliferation of Outlets; and in 1992 on Alcohol Beverage Advertising That Targets Youth. A concern that has not been addressed is the issuance or transfer of liquor licenses to businesses near schools.

The California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is authorized but not required to refuse the issuance of on-sale retail licenses for premises within 600 feet of schools and playgrounds. The booklet Questions and Answers Concerning the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act and Related Constitutional Provisions of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control states: “Generally speaking, the Department refuses to issue either on-sale or off-sale licenses for premises within the immediate vicinity of schools and churches when it is shown that the issuance of the licenses would be contrary to public welfare and morals. Mere proximity by itself is not sufficient.”

The condition that denial be based on the license being contrary to public welfare and morals is a loophole that in fact weakens the entire policy. A nightclub or liquor outlet next to a school not only advertises substance abuse but also glamorizes it. In addition, a 600 foot distance is inadequate for the protection of grade one through 12 schools from possible effects from such licensing.

There is a proliferation of beverage services businesses near public schools and youth facilities. Furthermore, once granted, an alcohol license is transferable. When a business is sold, the existing license can be transferred with the business. And once licensed, a business can expand so that the conditions for the surrounding community are no longer the same as when the license was originally issued. Many California schools and their surrounding communities have chosen to be in “Drug Free Zones,” alcohol being recognized as a drug. The schools and communities have no opportunity to influence the issuance of licenses to businesses in close proximity to their sites.
